Good afternoon,

I am so sorry it has taken so long to get back to you. After discussing your plans, to create a riffling club for individuals in wheelchairs, with Dr. Jorgenson again, we have decided that right now with campus' being on such high alert we want to aim to discuss this again next semester. We want to be able to get the support that this club deserves and with all that has been happening with campus violence it might be better to move forward in the future. I do look forward to contacting you in the spring to follow up and begin this journey.

Sincerely,
Arielle Seidner

Arielle,

I didn't know Bill had your email or I would've contacted you a while ago. Are you still up for a trip to the range? The weather is great for the next couple weeks and we have our resident expert shotgun coach just waiting for the word. You can email me or text me at 202-774-4903. I will admit to being more responsive to texts but either way works for me. Thanks and I look forward to hearing from you.

Hello Bill,

Great to hear from you! [REDACTED]
[REDACTED].

On a separate note, how cool is the message below. I am happy to act as a representative from Mason and will ask that you coordinate with Ms. Seidner who will be very helpful in scheduling a meeting with you.

Thank you for the opportunity to be part of improved accessibility! ( Oh and please call me Linn- [REDACTED]

Dr. Jorgenson:
[REDACTED]

However, it is not [REDACTED] that I'd like to discuss with you at this time. While in your office, I was struck by the diversity of need displayed by the students as they came and went. This inspired me to reinvigorate an existing program here at the National Rifle Association. There has been a department providing assistance to shooters with disabilities for several years but since that day in your office we have taken significant steps to improve this service. As a first step, the NRA hired a young man with a Doctorate in Physical Therapy with the objective of increasing our insight into the adaptive community. This has proven successful as we have already set things in motion to make all of our courses and programs more accessible. Next, we would like to develop an adaptive shotgun sports program specifically for students that use wheelchairs through improvements in training for our national team of Shotgun Coaches (4000+ individuals). Through our testing we have determined that clay targets and wheelchairs work well together and that shotgun sports at both the college and high school level are growing by leaps and bounds. I know of parents whose children were on shooting teams in high school that are looking for colleges with similar programs so their kids can stay involved in the sport and my goal is to have students in wheelchairs competing with their kids for slots on those shooting teams.

While we are energized by this vision and know that we can have a positive impact on the adaptive community, we must do so with focus. The NRA will need to engage an expert at the school level to seek their input and guidance. This is why I am reaching out to you and George Mason University. As you may be aware, George Mason is a member of the American College Union International (ACUI) with a Trap and Skeet shooting team that competes in events throughout the school year. The ACUI is made up of approximately 250 schools and has communicated a very enthusiastic support for the development of the adaptive shotgun sports as I have outlined here. Would you be able to direct me to someone in your office with whom we may schedule a meeting to discuss this matter in greater detail? I and my managers will make every effort to accommodate your schedule as I'm sure this is a very busy time of year for you and your team. Thank you for your time and I look forward to working with you in both this endeavor and [REDACTED]
